

Objects

The house is like a filter.

Things come in.

Things go out.

Some things stay.

Family stuff stays.

I'm not a collector but I study objects.

I buy what I don't understand.

The things that have remained in the house have accumulated over time.

After years of sitting the distinctions between this and that work and "play" house and studio don't seem very important. So I tend to approach everything the same way.
